Recognizing the intersections among social, environmental and climate injustice in a time of planetary emergency, Transformative Environmental Constitutionalism engages with how courts in South Africa and beyond can respond.

Transformative Environmental Constitutionalism offers novel legal approaches to environmental problems. Its readership includes academics, post-graduate students, public interest lawyers, environmental activists, social justice advocates, non-governmental organizations, officials in government departments engaged in environmental governance, and others concerned with intersecting issues of social, environmental and climate injustice.

Melanie Murcott is an Associate Professor in the Department of Public Law at the University of Pretoria. She teaches and engages in research in the fields of environmental law and administrative law. She is the Vice-Chairperson of the Environmental Law Association of South Africa, a Director of Animal Law Reform South Africa, and an admitted attorney. In 2020 she was selected to be a fellow in the Department of Higher Education and Training's Future Professors Programme. This fellowship has provided Melanie with invaluable support as she authored Transformative Environmental Constitutionalism.
